A message from Rod Park

In case you hadn't noticed, there are new faces in the region...and more coming. The people we anticipated and planned to be here in the distant future will be here sooner. This growth has huge implications for Oregon's natural resources, land use, and transportation planning. With more people coming to the northern Willamette Valley it is essential that we continue and even accelerate discussion on where these people will raise their families and what impact the growth will have on existing communities.

The Metro Council is currently considering what steps to take to plan for this growth. In the past several months I have been going out talking to different groups including neighborhood associations, neighboring cities, city councils, and counties. In 2006, we will conduct public opinion surveys to identify desired community outcomes and transportation priorities. If you would like me to come out and talk to your group I invite you to contact my assistant, Kathryn Sofich.

I would also like to remind you about the deadline for the Nature in Neighborhoods grant program. This is your opportunity to improve your community! Pre applications are due January 12. With three different categories of grants available, you don't have to be a large-scale environmental organization to apply.

Metro hosts public forums on bond measure proposal

This spring, the Metro Council will develop and refer to voters (for consideration at the November 2006 election) a bond measure proposal for the protection of natural areas, clean water, and fish and wildlife habitat. Through a 1995 bond measure, Metro successfully acquired more than 8,100 acres and 74 miles of stream and river frontage from willing sellers in order to preserve these natural areas for future generations to enjoy. A 'Blue Ribbon' committee of local business and civic leaders recently recommended that the Council develop a new $220 million package to continue our successful efforts and preserve critical wildlife habitat, protect water quality, and provide opportunities for future generations to enjoy natural areas as our region continues to grow.

Now it is your turn to weigh in. Metro will host public forums in January and February to explain the bond measure proposal in greater detail and to receive your ideas on what elements should be included.

Nature in Neighborhoods grant pre-applications due Jan. 12

Are you a private property owner, non-profit community group or local government agency that would like to initiate or continue restoration efforts in your neighborhood or watershed? Metro's new Nature in Neighborhoods grant program will provide financial support for nature-friendly projects in neighborhoods throughout Metro's service area. Through this program, individuals and communities will be actively participating in making a positive difference in their watershed.

Metro is inviting pre-applications from citizen groups, businesses, non-profits, school groups, government agencies and service groups. Grants from $1,000 to $25,000 will be awarded to projects related to restoration, protection of water quality or education. They must either link participants and citizens to their watershed through education and active restoration, develop partnerships and possibly foster innovative public/private enterprise, or focus on expanding existing restoration projects or developing new projects that become anchor sites for future restoration.

Projects must be within Metro's jurisdictional boundary. Grant pre-applications are due at Metro by 4 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 12.

Funding for this two-year program was provided by Metro excise taxes collected on solid waste disposal during the last several years. In this funding cycle, there will be approximately $500,000 available.

For more information, call Janelle Geddes, restoration grants coordinator, at (503) 797-1550 or send e-mail to NINrestore@metro.dst.or.us. The hearing impaired can call TDD (503) 797-1804.

Earth Day billboard art contest invites student entries

Students from Clackamas, Multnomah and Washington counties are invited to create a design for a billboard that encourages people to conserve and protect resources through waste prevention, recycling, composting or using fewer toxic products.

Metro's Earth Day billboard art contest judges will select one winner from each grade-level category: K-2, 3-5, 6-8 and 9-12. The four winners will have their artwork, their name and the name of their teacher and school displayed on billboards that are rotated around the Portland-metropolitan area throughout the year.

Metro expects to receive more than 2,000 entries. Approximately 200 entries will be selected as finalists and will be displayed in the lobby at Metro Regional Center the week after the deadline of Feb. 10. Winning and honorable mention artists will have their original artwork framed and returned to them at the art show and unveiling ceremony on April 8.

View contest rules and application instructions at: www.metro-region.org For more information for elementary schools, call Freda Sherburne at (503) 797-1522 or send e-mail to sherburnef@metro.dst.or.us. For more information for middle and high schools, call Amy Wilson at (503) 797-1521 or send e-mail to wilsona@metro.dst.or.us.

About Metro

Clean air and clean water do not stop at city limits or county lines. Neither does the need for jobs, a thriving economy and good transportation choices for people and businesses in our region. Voters have asked Metro to help with the challenges that cross those lines and affect the 25 cities and three counties in the Portland metropolitan area.

A regional approach simply makes sense when it comes to protecting open space, caring for parks, planning for the best use of land, managing garbage disposal and increasing recycling. Metro oversees world-class facilities such as the Oregon Zoo, which contributes to conservation and education, and the Oregon Convention Center, which benefits the region's economy.
