BACKGROUND

The Black American experience in Greater Portland and Oregon is a story of perseverance under two centuries of oppressive and exclusionary acts. The first black exclusion law in Oregon, adopted in 1844 was the first of many aimed at deterring potential black settlement into the state, by deeming it as hostile to Black Americans. Subsequent discriminatory policies and practices over the next several decades attempted to break the will of Black Americans by taking away certain rights and opportunities including voting, receiving quality education, holding public office and achieving economic success.

During World War II, the Black population in Greater Portland increased due to the need for wartime labor. Black communities in Portland thrived momentarily during the postwar but would experience continued bouts of disruption that would displace many Black community members over time.

Today, Black community members make up just under 2% of the population in Oregon and under 4% of the population in Greater Portland according to the latest Census data.

This proclamation is intended to highlight the tremendous contributions made by Black Americans, past and present, to Greater Portland and Oregon, while acknowledging that systemic barriers to advancement continue. It is also a time to act; by ensuring that our efforts not only recognize past and present injustices but also work towards removing barriers and creating opportunities for the Black community to thrive.

Black History Month is an annual celebration of achievements by Black Americans originally founded by scholar and son of former slaves, Carter G Woodson who initiated the first Black History Week in February 1926, choosing the second week of February to coincide with the birthdays of Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln. Since, 1976, every US President has officially designated the month of February as Black History Month.
