

METRO FUTURE VISION COMMISSION

For I dipp'd into the future,
far as human eye could see,
Saw the Vision of the world,
and all the wonder that would be.
Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

hat lies in store for this region – known for its tremendous livability and aesthetic beauty – is a matter of considerable interest and discussion. Everyone wants to keep our region livable. The dialogue about how to do that continues to be both lively and thought-provoking.

The mission of Metro's Future Vision

Commission is to devise a vision that will guide

the metropolitan region into the next 50 years and beyond. It will shape a vision — resulting in specific actions — that serves as a guiding light for citizens, regional leaders, businesses, interest groups and educators who believe that, with hard work and forward-thinking, tomorrow can be even better than today.

What is the Future Vision Commission?

It is an 18-member volunteer group, whose members and alternates were appointed in March 1993 by the Metro Council, the governors of Oregon and Washington, and the Metro Policy Advisory Committee. The Future Vision Commission will forward a recommended vision to the council in 1995. The council must adopt a vision by July 1, 1995.

The Future Vision Commission was created as a result of the voter-approved 1992 Metro Charter, which states in part that:

"The Future Vision is a conceptual statement that indicates population levels and settlement patterns that the region can accommodate within the carrying capacity of the land, water and air resources of the region, and its educational and economic resources, and that achieves a desired quality of life."

Commission members bring to their task valuable perspectives and expertise in areas such as land development, finance, the arts, human services, the role of neighborhoods, citizen involvement, natural resources and transportation.

How does the "vision" relate to Metro's other planning efforts?

The Future Vision is more general and covers a broader geographical area than Metro's other planning efforts. It attempts to set goals and standards by which other planning programs can be measured. The Future Vision Commission members have chosen to look at a nine-county* area in Oregon and Washington and asks: "What do we want to keep, change and add to the area during the next 50 or more years?"

Metro's Region 2040 program - which focuses on land-use and transportation planning through the year 2040 - is providing valuable information and analysis that will be used by the commission. The commission also is examining technical papers on issues of vital importance to future livability, such as: the carrying capacity of our natural and human resources, historic and potential settlement patterns that show where people might live, and changes and potential trends in the way people work in the future. The charter provides that the Regional Framework Plan - an outline of specific regional landuse elements - must address the Future Vision. This is of critical importance since the Regional Framework Plan will be binding upon local governments.

What is Metro?

Metro is the directly elected regional government that serves more than I million residents in Clackamas, Multnomah and Washington counties and the 24 cities within the Portland metropolitan area.

Metro is responsible for solid waste management; operation of the Metro Washington Park Zoo; transportation and land-use planning; metropolitan greenspaces and regional parks; and technical services to local governments. Through the Metropolitan Exposition-Recreation Commission, Metro manages the Oregon Convention Center, Civic Stadium, the Portland Center for the Performing Arts and the Expo Center.

Metro is governed by a 13-member council (changing to seven members in January 1995) and an executive officer. Councilors are elected within districts; the executive officer is elected regionwide.

How do I get involved in shaping the Future Vision?

Future Vision Commission meetings are open to the public, and public comment is encouraged. For meeting schedules or other information, call 797-1562. Written materials may be sent to commission members c/o Metro Planning Department, 600 NE Grand Ave., Portland, OR 97232, or by fax at 797-1794.

METRO FUTURE VISION COMMISSION

On November 3, 1992, the voters of the Metro district approved the 1992 Metro Charter. Section 5 (1) of the charter requires the Metro Council, to between January 15, 1995 and July 1, 1995, adopt a "Future Vision".

The Charter describes "Future Vision" as...

"...a conceptual statement that indicates population levels and settlement patterns that the region can accommodate within the carrying capacity of the land, water and air resources of the region, and its educational and economic resources, and that achieves a desired quality of life. The "Future Vision" is a longterm, visionary outlook for at least a 50-year period.
..."region" means the Metro area and adjacent areas."

The Charter describes the matters to be addressed by the "Future Vision" to include but not be limited to...

- "1) use, restoration and preservation of regional land and natural resources for the benefit of present and future generations,
- 2) how and where to accommodate the population growth for the region while maintaining a desired quality of life for its residents, and
- 3) how to develop new communities and additions to the existing urban areas in well-planned ways."

To accommodate this task, the Charter requires the Metro Council to appoint a Future Vision Commission to develop and recommend a proposed "Future Vision". According to the Charter the Future Vision Commission...

"...shall be broadly representative of both public and private sectors, including the academic community, in the region. At least one member must reside outside the Metro area. The commission has authority to seek any necessary information and shall consider all relevant information and public comment in developing the proposed Future Vision. The commission serves without compensation."

The Metro Council, through adoption of Resolution 93-1755A, is now actively recruiting potential members of the Future Vision Commission by means of a simultaneous process of application and nomination. This process is to allow interested individuals to seek appointment to the commission by filing an application, while also allowing individuals or interest groups to nominate potential candidates.

The Future Vision Commission will be composed of a total of 15 members, seven of which include:

- a. Two members of the Metro Council, appointed by the Metro Presiding Officer;
- b. Two local government officials, appointed by the Metro Policy Advisory Committee (MPAC);
- One resident of the State of Washington, appointed by the Governor of the State of Washington;
- d. One resident of the State of Oregon that resides outside the Metro boundary, appointed by the Governor of the State of Oregon; and
- e. One representative of the academic community, appointed by the Metro Council.

The remaining eight members are to be appointed by the Metro Council to collectively represent the following perspectives:

- a. infrastructure/technical/transit;
- b. livability;
- c. land development;
- d. financial;
- e. the arts;
- fr human services;
- g. neighborhoods; and
- h. natural resources.

The Council Planning Committee shall screen the list of applicants and nominees, actively recruit and interview those individuals of greatest interest, and present its final recommendations to the Metro Council.

Upon final selection of the membership of the Commission and after consulting with the Metro Council, the Metro Presiding Officer shall appoint the Chairperson of the Commission. This selection shall not be a Metro Councilor or a local government representative.

The term of office shall begin upon appointment and shall continue until completion of the project. The Metro Council reserves the right to remove any member of the Commission for non-performance of duty. The Commission shall serve without compensation.

Metro will integrate the work of the Future Vision Commission with the Region 2040 process. A more detailed Work Plan/Scope of Work is currently under development by the Council. For further information please contact Gail Ryder, Council Analyst to the Council Planning Committee, in the Metro Council office at 221-1646, extension 136.

Metro Council seeking citizens for Future Vision Commission

The Metro Council is seeking applications and nominations for a new 15-member Future Vision Commission that will play a pivotal role in shaping the region's long-term growth management and livability policies.

Metro's home-rule charter, approved by the voters in November, 1992, mandated that the agency create the Future Vision Commission to develop a "Future Vision" that would be at least a 50-year outlook on issues dealing with the region's livability. Among the issues to be addressed by the Future Vision Commission are: use, restoration and preservation of land natural resources for future generations; how and where to accommodate growth without sacrificing the quality of life we enjoy in the region; and how to develop new communities and additions to the existing urban areas.

The commission will consider quality-of-life factors such as how population growth will affect land, water and air resources. It also will study growth's effect on the region's educational and economic resources.

The Metro Council voted during its Feb. 25 council meeting to begin seeking Future Vision Commission members immediately and to use a simultaneous nomination and application process. Certain positions on the Future Vision Commission will be filled by various government agencies or officials. Other positions will be filled by the Metro Council.

The commission will consist of 15 members, seven of which include:

- Two members of the Metro Council, to be appointed by the Metro Presiding Officer;
- Two local government officials, to be appointed by the Metro Policy Advisory Committee (MPAC);
- One resident of the state of Washington, to be appointed by the governor of Washington;
- One resident of Oregon who lives outside the Metro boundary, to be appointed by the governor of Oregon;

• One representative of the academic community, to be appointed by the Metro Council.

The other eight members are to be appointed by the Metro Council and must collectively represent the following perspectives:

- Infrastructure/technical/transit
- Livability
- Land development
- Finance
- The arts
- Human services
- Neighborhoods
- Natural resources

The commission will begin work as soon as the appointment process is completed and will continue until completion of the project. The commission will serve without compensation and will act in an advisory capacity to the Metro Council.

Anyone interested in applying or nominating someone else may contact Cheri Arthur or Gail Ryder in the Metro Council Office at 221-1646. Deadline for applications and nominations is April 2.

FUTURE VISION COMMISSION

Introduction

The Future Vision will be the guiding document the region will use to measure how well we are doing in preserving and enhancing the quality of life for present and future generations. The Future Vision is addressing regional issues that will affect our children and their children during the second half of the 21st century.

The Future Vision is being drafted by members of the Future Vision Commission:

Len Freiser, Chair Susan McLain, Vice-Chair Lisa Barton-Mullins Ron Correnti	Robert Liberty Peggy Lynch John Magnano Peter McDonald	Kim Katsion, alternate Ted Spence, alternate Fred Stewart, alternate
Judy Davis	Alice Schlenker
Mike Gates	Rod Stevens
Mike Houck	Robert Textor
Wayne Lei		•

Several members of the Future Vision Commission are here at today's Growth Conference. Judy Davis is a panelist during the morning session, and Dr. Len Freiser will address the evening session.

Metro Charter Requirements

The voter-approved 1992 home-rule charter specified that Metro adopt a "vision" that looks at least 50 years into the future. As a result, the Future Vision Commission was created. The specific language of the charter that addresses the Future Vision includes:

Adoption: The council shall adopt a Future Vision for the region between January 15, 1995 and July 1, 1995. The Future Vision is a conceptual statement that indicates population levels and settlement patterns that the region can accommodate within the carrying capacity of the land, water and air resources of the region, and its educational and economic resources, and that achieves a desired quality of life. The Future Vision is a long-term visionary outlook for at least a 50-year period.

Matters addressed: The matters addressed by the Future Vision include but are not limited to: (1) use, restoration and preservation of regional land and natural resources for the benefit of present and future generations, (2) how and where to accommodate the population growth for the region while maintaining a desired quality of life for its residents, and (3) how to develop new communities and additions to the existing urban areas in well-planned ways.

Development: The council shall appoint a commission to develop and recommend a proposed Future Vision by a date the council sets. The commission shall be broadly representative of both public and private sectors, including the academic community, in the region. At least one member must reside outside the Metro area. The commission has authority to seek any necessary information and shall consider all relevant information and public comment in developing the proposed Future Vision. The commission serves without compensation.

Review and amendment: The Future Vision may be reviewed and amended as provided by ordinance. The Future Vision shall be completely reviewed and revised at least every 15 years.

Effect: The Future Vision is not a regulatory document. It is the intent of this charter that the Future Vision have no effect that would allow court or agency review of it.

Scope of Work

The Future Vision Commission, with representatives of citizens, local government and Metro, is now hard at work. The commission is charged with looking at the region's future at least 50 years out. In addition to addressing land-use and transportation issues, the Vision will consider other "big picture" factors that affect quality of life, such as economic and educational resources.

Since the commission is taking a 50-plus year view, it also is looking at a geographic area (which it is still defining) that is larger than current Metro boundaries. The charter recognizes that growth in the three-county Metro area will affect southwest Washington and adjoining Oregon counties.

The commission has committed itself to a work schedule that will provide guidance to the Metro Council when the Council makes a decision on a growth concept next summer. To do this, the Future Vision Commission is concentrating on the most challenging part of its job first. That is, it is developing the core of the Vision - -the part that outlines what the region wants to keep, what it wants to improve, and what it wants to change. Additional technical and staff work is being done that will be provided to the commission to assist in the visioning process.

The Future Vision will be adopted by the Metro Council by July 1, 1995. It in turn will guide the Regional Framework Plan, which will set regional policy on a series of specific topics, including land use, transportation, greenspaces, urban reserves, water supply, and community density and design.

The Future Vision Commission meets at 4 p.m. every second and fourth Monday at Metro. The meetings are open to the public, and public comment is encouraged. For meeting schedules or other information, call 797-1750. Written comments also may be sent to commission members c/o Metro at 600 NE Grand Ave., Portland, OR 97232.
