Dear Metro Councilors:

I am writing to express my dismay at your proposed change in meeting times.

As a public body that welcomes citizen participation and input, early afternoon meetings send citizens a clear message that Metro plans to make it as inconvenient as possible (and for many people, impossible) to attend public hearings.

Since I am both a neighborhood volunteer and a Portland Public School employee, I am an victim of this potential conflict.

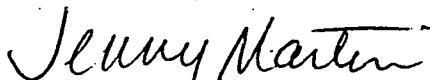

In my neighborhood role, I just received a letter awarding Friends of Northwest Parks a grant from the Metro Enhancement Committee. I am very excited about this project and might have reason to attend one of your meetings in my capacity as chair of that group.

I am also a dedicated library assistant at Beaumont Middle School. Like most educators I try to plan all personal business and appointments after or at the end of the school day. This way I do not interrupt the important continuity of my work with classes. I cannot imagine asking my boss for the afternoon off to pursue a project that I am working on for my neighborhood.

I urge you to rethink this proposed change from the vantage point of those working citizens that are willing to volunteer their own time to make our community a better place. It is unfair to ask them to volunteer their employers' time.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Jenny Martin

TO THE METRO COUNCILORS:

I received a phone call from Dan Small, CCI member this afternoon regarding the changes of times for committee meetings. He would like to express his concern regarding afternoon meetings. He says that this will not accommodate the newly formed CCI committee since most of the members work during the day and therefore would not be able to attend these meetings. He said it is crucial that they be able to attend committee meetings.
